“The Go Doctorate Go Journey”

Go Doctorate Go’s growth plan for blogging began with the blog “What is your Predicament?” Because voting matters and is a privilege right for Americans, staying abreast of your ecosystems, emissions, fisheries, energy, and agriculture is a necessary revolution. Water and the air we breathe matter most to Go Doctorate Go and I personally hold the President of the United States responsible for keeping his promise to Americans about making the World we breathe, eat, and work in Safe for all. As a blogger/writer/public relations story writer my goal is to deliver awareness to the public on these issues as they are made available as a reminder of what was promised to us Americans when our votes were casted for the best candidate fit. So why the celebrity presence in my stories? Public figures work the hardest to drive change in our economy because they are our economy today. Change agents, problems solvers, and the Use of Self, Ministers, and the like personality makes a difference in how decisions are driven in business and influenced by how we decide thought to our approaches. Since March 2015, when I began a new niche to public relation story telling and not cutting out your story from the local newspaper; the decision for this business was to always refer back to my textbooks and articles to penetrate and provoke thought to my Fans to become the best in our World whether it is a homemaker, professional, start-up business, the encountered, or an illustration. Why something matters today drives liberation, growth innovation, social justice, and voting rights dimensions to buffer content delivered. If anyone ever questions why I provoke you to read my story, the audience will respond, “I like it.” Over the next 5 years, my industry blogs will focus on Entertainment and Arts, although my love is for the environment. The big event for Go Doctorate Go was planned around a Big Event, The 2015 National Action Network Convention and all action and responsibility for a safer story in our world will be planned around your news until action has been completed. The Social Purpose of the public relations content is a team inquiry effort to question the purpose and goals of the participant with the tools they use to drive change and how the timelines are met in the campaign.
